Anti-Bullying

Among the programs developed by the "The Diana Award" foundation " it highlights 'Anti-Bullying', as a leading initiative answering to the large number of bullying cases suffered by some children. Using its 15,000 ambassadors, it trains young people to hold workshops and meetings in more than 3,000 schools across the UK.

The Duke of Cambridge and one of the founders of Global Gift attended one of these training sessions, at Hammersmith Academy, where children are taught to recognize the early signs of cyberbullying and tips to prevent it. Both heard testimonies from young people who were victims of bullying.

Maria Bravo states: "it has been a great honour to attend this event with the Duke of Cambridge and be commended for the work we carry out all over the world by a Spanish Foundation founded in Marbella. We back all the projects The Diana Awards carries out and are very excited about the Duke of Cambridge's possible involvement in the Gala in 2016".
